Peace Conference
Congratulations to Golden West College on a successful Peace Conference. Today's event had an impressive schedule of events and was thought-provoking and energizing. Please join me in congratulating Fran Faraz, Peace Studies Program Director, on this event.

Board Committee Meetings
Audit and Budget Committee – I would like to thank the Board Audit and Budget committee for welcoming Vicenti, Lloyd & Stutzman and for setting clear expectations and deadlines for the coming comprehensive annual external audit.

Legislative Affairs Committee – While my schedule precluded my attendance at this meeting, I look forward to hearing discussion at the full Board meeting regarding the recommendations for legislation efforts including baccalaureate degrees at community colleges, Pell Grants and the Dream Act.

Happy Easter!

The Orange Coast College Speech, Debate and Theater Team brought home a national championship this week after competing at the 2013 Phi Rho Pi Community College National Forensics Tournament held from April 7-13 in Denver, CO.

OCC scored more the most points in “individual events,” winning the top gold medal in the large-school division. Approximately 60 community colleges were in Denver to compete in the weeklong event.

OCC also had a fourth place showing in combined speech and debate sweepstakes, one of two silver medals in the overall sweepstakes large-school division.

The parliamentary debate team of Austin Funk (Huntington Beach) and David Miller (Huntington Beach) were voted by their peers as the winners of the Bossard-Twohy Parliamentary Debate Award, recognizing them as the top debate team at the tournament. Last year, Funk was recognized as the top debater in a different category of debate, NFA Lincoln Douglas. He is one of only two students in the history of the national tournament to be voted as the top debater in two different categories.

Coast also won a gold medal in Interpreters Theater where students present a staged and memorized show using oral interpretation techniques.

OCC sent 14 students to the national competition. Eleven students returned home with medals, including seven gold medals, two silver medals and nine bronze medals. Several team members won more than one medal.

OCC Forensics Director Christopher DeSurra and Director of Debate Sherana Polk coach the team with part-time faculty members Erin Harris, Das Nugent, Shaw Davari, Nichole Barta, Dana-Jean Smith, Sean Conner and Bryan Malinis.

“Eleven of the students here have never been to a national tournament before,” DeSurra said. “I’m amazed that a team this green was able to pull this off.” Polk added, “We’re one of the few teams in the country that competes in every genre of this activity, so it’s pretty cool to be the only team that was able to win awards across the board.” (The different genres in forensic competition include interpreters theater, oral interpretation, limited-preparation speaking, and platform speaking, as well as debate.)
Photography Exhibits Open in Two Campus Galleries

Two exhibits opened this week in campus photography galleries.

Jimmy Fike’s “Photographic Survey of the Wild Edible Botanicals of the North American Continent” is on exhibit in the Art Center Gallery located on the second floor of the Art Center. It runs through May 19.

In Fike’s project, edible plants are photographed in front of a black backdrop. Viewers can easily identify the plant and recognize the type of environment it is commonly found in, such as a roadside, streambed or forest. In the second part, each plant is excavated, photographed and illustrated digitally: edible parts of the plant are in color, while the rest of the plant is in grayscale.

Fike explains that his project, which eventually will include hundreds of photographs of edible plants, “is vitally relevant to issues of sustainability.” He states, “By ingesting or simply recognizing these plants that grow abundantly all around us, anyone can directly experience the wonder of our symbiotic evolution with the natural environment, gain a sense of place based upon bioregionalism, activate possibilities for creative economies, and gain a vested awareness of local environmental issues.”

Fike was born in Birmingham, Alabama in 1970. He earned a BA in Art from Auburn University and an MFA in Photography form the Cranbrook Academy of Art. His artwork explores the intersection of place, mythology and ecology. Jim currently resides in Phoenix, AZ, and is an art faculty member at Estrella Mountain College.

For more information, visit the artist’s website at www.jimfike.com.

OCC’s Fine Arts Gallery features the photography of Mark Allen Francis in “Rituals” through May 19.

Francis’s images were captured over a three-year period and depict scenes from an eclectic mix of community festivals around the United States, including favorites like the Blue Angels Homecoming Air Show in Pensacola, FL, Bring Your Own Big Wheel race in San Francisco and 5,000 Egg Giant Omelette Celebration in Abbeville, LA. He traveled on the weekends, attending some 40 events, collecting thousands of images. An associate professor of photography at in the Visual Arts Department at Pensacola State College, Francis describes the images as being more photojournalistic in style, “usually focused on one individual in relationship to their environment and the people around them.”
